

Jan Ženka

Jan Ženka is a professor at the Department of Social Geography and Regional Development at the Faculty of Science, University of Ostrava. He is the guarantor of the doctoral programme in Political and Economic Geography. His research focuses on the competitiveness and resilience of non-metropolitan regions, the geography of creative industries, and knowledge-intensive business services. He teaches economic geography, theories of regional development, introduction to geography, and quantitative methods in geography. Currently, he is studying the role of nanotechnologies in the development of old industrial regions.

Co-funded by the European Union

MINISTRY OF REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT CZ

EVALUATION
UNIT NCA